Send this letter to friends and family who you think will be interesting and supportive of your work in cervical cancer. They don't have to live in your community to be interested.

January is Cervical Health Awareness Month You Can Save a Life!

Dear [first name],

Did you know that you could help women in our community who too often don't know the risk from cervical cancer?

It's true. Every gift helps inform at least one more woman understand her risk and what to do to avoid cancer. Cervical cancer is the only cancer we can wipe out in our life time. Last year in the United States, about 11,000 women are diagnosed with cervical cancer each year and 4,000+ women died.

I've been working with the National Cervical Cancer Coalition (NCCC), a program of the American Sexual Health Association (ASHA) an almost 100 year old nonprofit. They've been helping me with my personal goal of educating women in my community so that no one need ever die of cervical cancer again. It is entirely too hard to see someone you love die of a preventable disease.

We will keep going until cervical cancer stops taking the lives of our loved ones. And I hope that you will keep going with us by making a donation today.

Add a brief paragraph about someone you know or tell your own story which lead to your interest in cervical cancer.

[Name mentioned above] is very committed to making a difference so others won't go through what she/he did. We need more [name].

I need your help to do this. Please consider a tax deductible donation help us raise $1,000 by January 31st for our lifesaving programs in [your community].

Thank you for your generous support.

Most Sincerely,
[Your name]

P.S. I urge you to make a tax-deductible gift to the National Cervical Cancer Coalition (NCCC) today so that there are more success stories like [name]. You can also donate in memory or in honor of a loved one. Go to www.nccc-online.org to give a gift that makes a difference.
